County Legislature Moves On Many Fronts

Just about every Ulster County legislator made his voice heard Thursday night as the county board tackled many controversial issues during its three-hour session.

- A rundown of the action shows that the board voted to:
- Create a special committee to investigate the Ulster County Highway Department.
  - Postpone action of approval of a $3.5 million additional welfare appropriation.
  - Keep a new law on the books requiring a line itemization of salaries of highway department employees.
  - Refer to the Bridge and Highway Committee a proposal to repair the Phoenicia Bridge.
  - Approve the 1975-76 Ulster County Community College $4.6 million budget.
  - Conduct a feasibility study into the establishment of additional mental health services in the county.
  - Conduct a feasibility study into the establishment of a county police force.
  - Refer to the Finance Committee a proposal to control

- funding of new programs and new county positions.
- Express opposition to any increase in first class mail rates.
  - Amend the county budget to appropriate mass transportation funds in the amount of $66,310 of which $33,155 is in state aid and the remainder as a gift from seven Ulster County bus carriers.

Welfare action tabled. See story, page 11

The proposals for the investigation of the highway department and the welfare appropriation are detailed in separate stories in today's Freeman.

Legislators George Kirk (R-Dist.4) and William R. West (R-Dist.4) sought authorization for the expenditure of $450,000 to repair the Phoenicia Bridge but the proposal was referred to the Bridge and Highway Committee at the suggestion of that committee's chairman, Eugene K. Noe (R-Dist.8). Noe said the project is under study by the New York State Department of Transportation and that he is seeking factual figures as to cost of replacing the bridge, which was badly damaged when struck by a truck in February.

West claimed the lack of the bridge was damaging a viable business community.

He said he didn't think he was asking too much to have the bridge replaced, pointing out that there is money available in the county's bridge construction funds.

The board did however agree to prosecute a claim on behalf of the Phoenicia Water District because its water lines previously crossed the bridge and were also destroyed in the accident.

The move to rescind a unanimously passed June resolution calling for line itemization of the highway budget was defeated by a vote of 17 to 15. The law, which will remain on the books, will be in effect for the year 1976. The attempt to rescind it was made by the Bridge and Highway committee.

A public hearing on the college budget was held at 2 p.m. Thursday with only one or two questions raised. The budget passed unanimously with no comment.

The study for the implementation of certain mental health services throughout the county was proposed by Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, Louis Bevier and Thomas Roach, all Dist. 8 Republican legislators.

They noted that major geographic areas are devoid of local mental health services including the south-southeastern section of the county including the towns of New Paltz, Gardiner, Lloyd, Plattekill, Shawangunk and Marlborough and the north-northeastern sections which take in Woodstock, Shandaken and Saugerties. They said it has been demonstrated by the operation of the Southern Ulster Mental Health Clinic in Ellenville that a clinic can be successfully initiated and maintained at a distance from the major local mental health programs in Kingston.

The study will be made by the Public Health Committee which will report back to the board in 60 days.

A vote of 19 to 12 approved the study of the county police force proposal advanced by Legislator Louis M. Klein (D-Dist.6). The study will be conducted by the Operational and Efficiency Committee. One legislator, George Sisti (R-Dist.8) was absent and West abstained from voting.

Lawmakers Favor Probe On Camallonga

By Lynn Mulvaney

there was no question Thursday night that all the members of the Ulster County Legislature wanted to see a further investigation into alleged acts of misconduct on the part of County Highway Superintendent Jose Camallonga Jr. but there was a divided camp when it came to who should conduct the inquiry—the state or a local committee.

The call for the establishment of a special bipartisan committee of five won out although the State Department of Transportation is reportedly already conducting an investigation.

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt recently completed his investigation into alleged misconduct on Camallonga's part in connection with his reported use of highway department employees and equipment at the site of his new home as well as his methods for disposing of used equipment. Vogt found that although some of the 11 allegations made against Camallonga showed inference of wrongdoing, there was insufficient evidence to warrant criminal prosecution.

Still others made new and additional charges of alleged misconduct on Camallonga's part. County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) responded saying that those charges should have been brought before the district attorney, "denouncing those who would hold back information."

The move to have a local committee investigate was made by Glenn Debrosky (R-Dist. 6) and Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6) while a motion to refer the matter to the State Department of Transportation (DOT) was made by Thomas Roach (R-Dist. 8) who claimed that "if our committee investigates, it will never answer the questions in the minds of the public." Roach's proposal was defeated 16-16. Roach said he felt that the accused Camallonga should have the opportunity to be heard by a disinterested party.

Minority Leader Dr. Gerald P. Gorman (D-City) pushed for a bi-partisan investigation saying "We are coping out." He said "it would be nice to have Transportation Commissioner Raymond Schuler investigate," but referring the matter to Albany would do a disservice to the people.

Louis Bevier (R-Dist. 8) disagreed, saying that any investigation by the county legislature "this (election) year, at this time, would be looked at with a jaundiced eye. It is better that an outside agency do the investigating," he added.

Debrosky said that DOT "was down here already and didn't do much." Klein said he felt strongly that an investigation was needed. "We should not tolerate behavior, criminal or not which is against the best interests of the people," he said.

"If Camallonga's actions warrant removal from office he should be removed. If not, he should be cleared," Klein said. Debrosky alleged that Vogt intimidated witnesses and said that going to Albany "smacks of a whitewash."

John Dwyer (D-City) said Vogt did a good job as did S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist. 5) among others.

Camallonga also came in for some praise for his role as superintendent regarding highway maintenance and the consolidation of highway department building locations. James Gilpatrick (D-City) lauded him for "saving the county many thousands of dollars." "He is not a stupid man but he did some stupid things in office," he concluded.

EPA Called On to Halt River Discharge

POUGHKEEPSIE

Hudson River Sloop Restoration (HRSR) has called on the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to use its emergency powers to halt the discharge of the toxic chemical PCB into the Hudson River.

The Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) revealed last week that dangerously high concentrations of polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) have been found in striped bass caught in the river north of Albany. DEC commissioner Ogden Reid warned against eating the fish and said his department would "discuss the problem" with river industries discharging the poisonous waste products.

Sloop Restoration, however, apparently believes the situation deserves more decisive action. In a letter to EPA administrator Russell Train, HRSR president Walter H. Schwane called the presence of PCB's "... a threat to the people and the environment of the Hudson Valley which might well set us all back decades and spell disaster for the once again burgeoning Hudson River fishery."

Schwane notes that Train has emergency authority, provided under the Water Pollution Act, to order the halt of all toxic discharges into the Hudson River and its tributaries.

"The EPA has a responsibility, indeed, an obligation in this matter," said Schwane in his letter, "to guarantee the health and safety of the people who drink of the Hudson's waters and eat of its bounty."

Sloop Restoration, which operates the sloop Clearwater and has been instrumental in the fight to clean up the Hudson, is also attempting to determine what specific firms are discharging the toxic materials. The two major sources, according to Reid, are two

General Electric plants north of Albany that had allegedly been dumping up to 48 pounds of PCB's into the river every day until last year. The discharges now reportedly amount to about two pounds per day.

John Harris-Cronin, a member of Sloop Restoration, said the Poughkeepsie-based organization is currently researching EPA records to determine if any Mid-Hudson firms are discharging the toxic water materials into the river.

The acceptable federal limit for PCB's in fish is five parts per million, but some striped bass caught near Albany were found to have concentrations as high as 350 parts per million. The chemical, which is used in the manufacture of such products as paint, plastics, printing ink and electrical transformers, can affect the reproductive systems in humans and the spawning capabilities of fish.

Schwane's letter also noted: "Over the years, this organization has been striving, with success, to abate the unlawful pollution of our waterways. Each polluter brought to justice has served as an example to his neighbor that environmental destruction in search of profit cannot and will not be tolerated. Now, we are asking you to aid us in this vital work in a time of great need."

Grand Jury Clears Sabino Of 'Criminal Wrongdoing'

KINGSTON

Town of Ulster Supervisor Carmine Sabino has been cleared, by the Ulster County grand jury of any criminal wrongdoing in connection with alleged irregularities in the Town of Ulster Highway Department.

The grand jury reported a "no bill" at 11 a.m. today according to Ulster County District Attorney Francis J. Vogt.

The grand jury has yet to report on its findings in the case of alleged wrongdoing on the part of former Town of Ulster Highway Superintendent Edgar P. Elliott, who resigned his post in June, while his department was under preliminary investigation by Vogt.

The matter of Elliott is still pending before the grand jury.

Vogt said this morning that ordinarily a grand jury would report on its findings in the two cases simultaneously but that "fairness dictates" that the report on Sabino be made public immediately in view of the fact that he has been cleared of criminal charges and because he is in politics.

Sabino will be challenged Monday night at a Republican caucus at the Chambers School for the nomination for supervisor by two candidates—Charles Roach and Robert Stedje.

He plans to announce his candidacy for the nomination Sunday, expressing his "concern for Town of Ulster residents," and citing his accomplishments.

Vogt said that the grand jury "thoroughly explored all the allegations with respect to Sabino but has not completed its investigation into the charges against Elliott." He expects that the grand jury will report out on Elliott within seven to 10 days.

When Vogt first revealed that he was investigating complaints of "irregularities" in the Town of Ulster Highway Department, many Town of Ulster Republicans reportedly pressured Sabino and Town Highway Superintendent Edgar P. Elliott to resign.

"I'm going to stay. If you are innocent, there is no reason to run away from anything," Sabino countered.

It was on June 3 that the supervisor said he "would defend his own record and alluding to Elliott, added, 'I cannot be responsible for someone else's actions.'"

Of an unnamed complainant in the investigation, Sabino said, "he has a right to complain and I have a right to defend."

The supervisor also claimed that, at that time, the investigation "was news" to the Town of Ulster Republican Committee.

It was the following day that Elliott, who is in the refuse collection business, announced that he would resign saying that he has "found lately that increased demands on my time in my personal endeavors and business commitments have caused me to put in many more hours each day. I am at retirement age and feel that 18 years is enough."

Gas Price Hikes ... Things to Come

KINGSTON

Slight gasoline price increases were announced by three major oil companies this week ... but the real explosion is expected in September.

Texaco and Arco announced this week that gasoline has been increased one cent per gallon. Mobil announced a one-half cent per gallon price hike. Earlier this month, Amoco began charging an extra penny for every gallon of gasoline.

Considering the current price of gasoline—the average is about 60 cents per gallon in this area—the latest increases aren't likely to have a severe impact on car-driving consumers. But they do represent the latest tentative steps in a trend that many believe will be accelerated if gasoline price controls are lifted at the end of this month.

According to James Benton, executive director of the Gasoline Retailers Association of Northeast New York (GRA), the organization which lobbies for the interests of gasoline dealers in Albany and Washington, the oil companies are "soft-peddling" gasoline price increases until all controls are lifted. "We had

If the controls are lifted, allowing the oil companies to establish their own prices and profits, Benton expects the price of a gallon of gasoline to increase between six and 10 cents by late autumn.

Gasoline prices in the Kingston area now range between 56 and 65 cents per gallon. Most of the dealers contacted by the Freeman concur with Benton's prediction of 70-cent gallons of gasoline by the end of the year.

"There won't be any sudden jump," said one dealer, "the increases should be gradual. But they'll go up nevertheless. When the controls expected increases averaging about three cents this month," said Benton, "but it looks as though they are holding off until next month, when they'll be free to institute all the increases they want."

There is no guarantee that controls will be lifted, however. Congress recently approved a 60-day extension of the price controls, but Benton says it is "now certain" that President Ford will veto the extension, and that there is only a "50-50" chance that Congress will be able to muster the necessary votes to override that veto.

are gone, there will be no stopping the oil companies."

The controls that are in effect now apply to the dealers as well as to the suppliers, but all of the local dealers surveyed insisted that they have no plans to hike prices on their own to increase their profit margin.

"There are competitive forces at work on the retail end that will keep the dealers at a reasonable profit margin," said Benton, "we can't grab extra profits from the consumers. But the oil companies can and will."

"When the controls are lifted, I can raise my price to 80 cents a gallon," said an Exxon dealer, "but if the guy across the street is charging 70 cents, I'm going to lose business. We'll all find a happy compromise."

In the meantime, the dealers have their own headaches to contend with. With decontrol of prices, the oil companies will be free to hike the rents that most dealers pay to occupy their service stations. Those anticipated rent increases, by necessity, will be passed on to the consumer. "Any way you look at it," said Benton, "the customers are going to get the worst of the bargain."

A Beard That Flies

Kathy Clossin, 19, of Maple Heights, Ohio, startled visitors at the Cuyahoga County Fair as she placed a queen honey bee under her chin and watched as about 8,000 bees swarmed over her chest and neck, creating a beard effect. Kathy, first female to try this in Ohio, said she did it to show that honey bees are safer than most people think. (UPI)

Esopus Is Seeking Storm Repair Aid

PORT EWEN
The Town of Esopus has applied for $34,000 aid for storm damage incurred in July from a twister that struck a small section of town during heavy area thunderstorms.

Supervisor George Freer reported that the application has been submitted through the Civil Defense Bureau, following an investigation of particulars by a civil engineer for documentation.

"Most of the damage was in one area," he said, where some 75 trees were blown down, obstructing roads. Also, in Port Ewen, the natural steeply sloping topography caused flooding and mud slide damage to some homes on the Hudson River bank.

Ulster Grants Variance for Repair Shop

By Carl Graham
TOWN OF ULSTER
The Ulster Town Board Thursday night granted a variance to a town businessman that will enable him to build one foot closer to his property line than the town's 10-foot limit.

Sid Musiker of Musiker Toyota proposes to build a 36-by-120 foot body repair shop on Route 9W near the present town hall. Plans call for a nine-foot clearance at the side, just one less than the town allows. The proposal has received preliminary approval from the town planning board.

A man in the audience asked what guarantee there would be that there would be no clutter between the front of the building and the road, an area where 11 parking spaces are shown on the plan. Musiker said that only a limited amount of work would be done there with perhaps a half dozen employees.

Approval was given subject to an on-site inspection by the town board and Musiker must now return to the planning board for final approval.

Prior to the meeting the board held an informational session at which Philip Spages of Spring Meadow Town Houses described plans for a 125-unit town house development on 13 acres near the Chambers School. Spages already had approval for a condominium development and seeks a variance to change to a town house setup of 51 three-bedroom, 50 two-bedroom and 24 one-bedroom units.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino said he had received numerous complaints from residents of Cityview Terrace about tractor trailers parked there overnight while the drivers were at a nearby motel. Sabino said that they littered the area badly. The board voted to post no-parking signs in the area.

The board tabled a request from the Ulster Business and Professional Association for four signs along the recently completed section of Ulster Avenue Mall, identifying it for persons who are not sure of its location. Sabino said that soaring welfare costs were a real problem and that the board would consider the sign request in the 1976 budget.

In other action at the meeting:

- Remodeling of the Tropical Inn, Port Ewen, has been undertaken in response to a fire marshal's report from James Southworth and following an investigation by the state police and the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. Overcrowding and inadequate exits were cited.
- Both the Port Ewen Sewer District and Port Ewen Water District are moving ahead "with great dispatch," said Freer. The town is ready for construction of its second water tower on a hill at Aero Lake, primarily to serve that new housing development.
- And Freer said he is hopeful of ground breaking in the spring for the sewer district. An environmental impact study is underway by a professional New Jersey firm.
- The Black Creek issue is not dead, said Freer, even though vetoed during the last session of the state legislature by Governor Carey. A new Department of Environmental Conservation report will be introduced and backing is assured from Assemblymen Maurice Hinchey and Emeel Betros, according to the supervisor, in the next session to preserve Black Creek in its natural state.
- A contract was awarded to Larry Brink of Port Ewen to demolish the former Van Horn Nursing Home building in Sleightsburg, long considered one of the more dangerous derelict buildings in town. The action was accomplished through the courts.

- And Freer forecast a spring groundbreaking on the first phase of the arterial bridge to connect Sleightsburg to an area in Kingston near Hasbrouck Park, with a Murray Street downtown interchange. When completed, the project is designed to provide more direct access to the uptown area from Route 9W in Port Ewen and the second bridge will help traffic conditions.

Case Is Reopened

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Robert Kennedy assassination case of 1968 has been ordered reopened to determine whether there may have been a second gunman in the Ambassador Hotel pantry where he was killed.

Superior Court Judge Robert Wenke approved a suit Thursday calling for re-firing of the pistol which was wrested from the hand of Sirhan Sirhan after a dozen eyewitnesses saw him firing bullets into the senator's body.

Sirhan, a Palestinian immigrant, was convicted of first-degree murder and is serving a life sentence at San Quentin.

Wenke set Sept. 11 for a hearing to decide the circumstances under which the ballistics evidence will be re-examined. There have been claims that bullets removed from Kennedy's body did not match one removed from a bystander wounded in the shooting.

The suit was brought by Paul Schrade, a United Auto Workers executive who was standing at Kennedy's side seven years ago and who also was hit by a bullet.

"It's a great victory because it opens up the possibility of finding out the truth in this case," Schrade said after the court ruling.

despite some cooling off, five persons were injured Thursday in Boston, and firebombing and minor skirmishes were reported in Elyria, Ohio.

Boston NAACP President Thomas Atkins was among a group of black leaders who toured sections of predominantly black Roxbury where youths had thrown rocks and bottles and occasionally attacked whites the four previous nights.

In Elyria, Ohio, several black leaders joined police in trying to persuade youths on the city's south side to go home peacefully. Police and highway patrolmen cruised the streets Thursday night to prevent a third night of the disturbances that apparently were triggered by the fatal shooting of a black burglar suspect by a white policeman.

The latest injuries in Boston came in fighting and rock throwing incidents in South Boston, Mattapan and Roxbury. It raised the total injured to more than 100 since unrest developed Sunday during a "confrontation at a 'swim-in' at a predominantly white South Boston beach.

The rock throwing prompted police to seal off traffic to three low-income housing projects in Roxbury. But by early today the areas were reopened.

"It's been much better than it has been," said police information officer George Landry. "It's been relatively quiet."

The Committee Against Racism, a multiracial group, called off a planned weekend "wade-in" at South Boston's Carson Beach, scene of the confrontation Sunday.

In Thursday's fighting, a black man was pulled from a car and beaten by a group of white youths in South Boston, police said. John Wyman, 37, was treated at Boston City Hospital and released.

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (UPI) — The family of Samuel Bronfman II, breaking a two-day silence, has called upon his kidnapers to renew contact and provide further proof the 21-year-old heir to the Seagram liquor fortune is still alive.

A statement read by a family spokesman Thursday outside the 150-acre Bronfman estate said the family had done its part in following the abductors' instructions and now wants a response by way of a special telephone number.

It was not known, however, whether a $4.5 million ransom reportedly demanded has been delivered.

"We need additional evidence now that Sam is still alive and well," family spokesman Jonathan Rinehart told newsmen gathered outside the Bronfman home in Westchester County, 25 miles north of New York City.

Appealing to the abductors almost six days after young Bronfman disappeared, Rinehart said the family had received "a tape recording containing instructions and evidence that these people have Sam."

"We are very grateful for that evidence. We want to assure them that we intend to comply with instructions and we have done so.

"However, the abductors so far have failed to follow through," he said. "We ask them now to renew their contacts by calling us at the number they originally indicated."

Rinehart said the family is "prepared to comply with instructions which must be clear, specific and practical."

Young Bronfman, a Williams College graduate, was last seen Friday night when he dined with his father, Seagram Co. Ltd. board chairman Edgar Bronfman, at the family home.

Another family spokesman declined comment Thursday night on whether there had been any response to the appeal.

He called home at 2 a.m. Saturday to report he had been abducted by three masked men. His car was found with keys in the ignition at the home he shares with his divorced mother, Ann Margaret Loeb, in Purchase, N.Y.

A ransom letter reportedly demanding $4.5 million and saying the boy was "buried" with a 10-day supply of air and water was received Monday. A tape recording said to contain Bronfman's voice was sent to the family Wednesday.

The news conference Thursday came after more than 48 hours of secrecy by the FBI and family on efforts to meet what is believed the largest ransom demand in U.S. history.

Hoffa Meeting Termed 'A Setup'

DETROIT (UPI) — Reputed Mafia don Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone set up one-time Teamsters boss James Hoffa for the fateful luncheon date 16 days ago from which Hoffa has not returned, sources close to the investigation said today.

The Detroit Free Press, in a copyrighted report, said it had learned Giacalone "had definitely arranged" a meeting with Hoffa July 30.

A Michigan law enforcement source close to the search confirmed all investigation indicated Giacalone "set Jimmy up" for a luncheon date at the Machus Red Fox Restaurant in suburban Bloomfield Township.

"On a 1 to 10 basis it's 7 to 8 he was set up and and done away with," the source said.

He added it was possible Hoffa, the tough "little fellow" of the Teamsters, could have been persuaded to leave the parking lot in front of the restaurant, even with a gun at his back.

"He's tough but he's not stupid," the source said. "He'd keep going as long as he could talk. As for anybody seeing anything that happened in that parking lot — nobody sees anything."

Giacalone, reputedly boss of the Detroit crime syndicate, has denied any such luncheon date and has a firm alibi with a masseur at a Southfield, Mich., athletic club. The lean, ascetic appearing reputed mobster — a longtime Hoffa friend who reportedly has turned against Hoffa recently — has since gone to Florida, indicating he will not talk further unless subpoenaed by a federal grand jury.

The Free Press said Giacalone had tried at least twice in July to arrange meetings with Hoffa.

It was reported the gathering was to be concerned not only with Hoffa's hopes of regaining control of the 2.2-million Teamsters from former protege Frank Fitzsimmons next year but with an underworld plot to gain control of the Eastern Teamsters Conference.

The third attempt at a meeting clicked, largely through the aid of a mutual friend, Louis Lintea, the Free Press reported. It quoted a source as saying Lintea had not betrayed Hoffa. "If Lintea played any role in this it was just as an unwilling dupe for Giacalone."

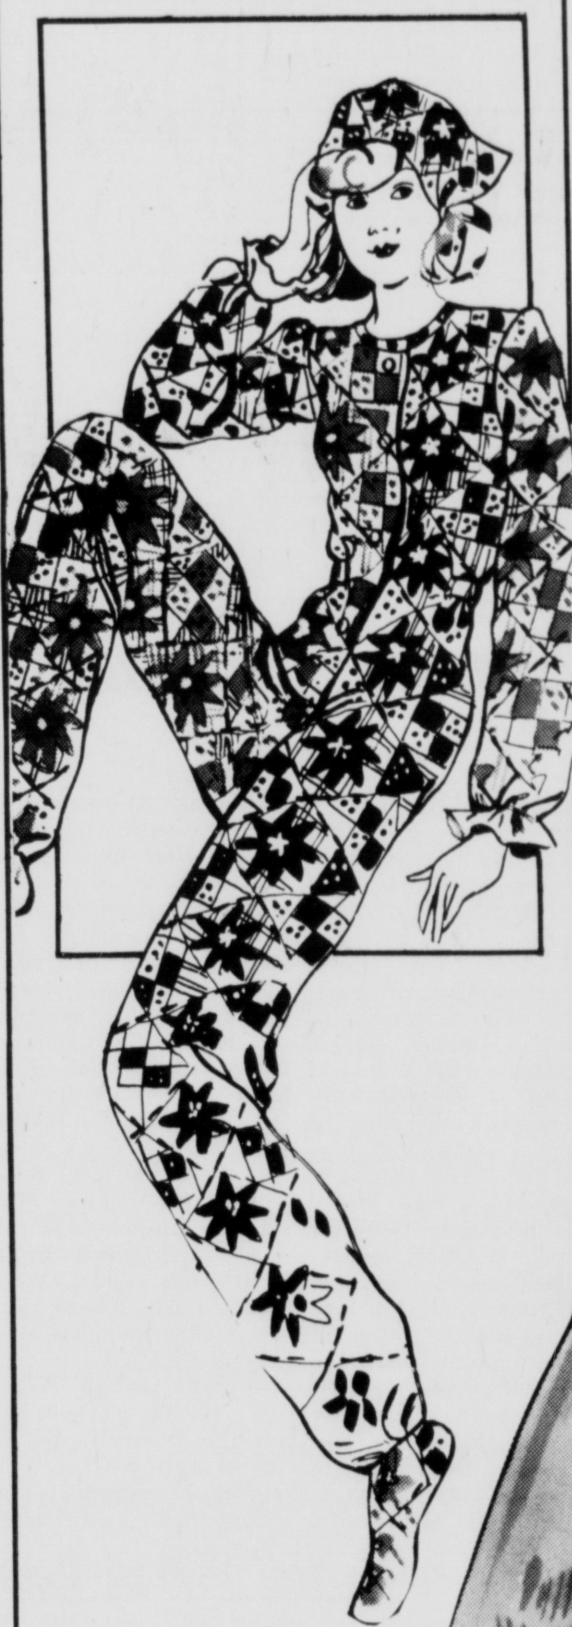

Lintea submitted to hypnosis and an FBI lie detector to verify his story, it was reported.

Hoffa told his wife and friends July 30 he would meet "T.J." (Giacalone), Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, reputed East Coast Teamster boss, and Leonard Schultz,

'Let Them Alone'

David Hume, a Scottish philosopher: "I am an American in my principles, and wish we would let them alone to govern or misgovern themselves, as they think proper; the affair is of no consequence, or of little consequence, to us."

Rehabilitation

The rehabilitation efforts now being successfully undertaken at the Ulster County Jail are noteworthy when compared to the lackluster past performances in that area. Much credit is due to Rehabilitation Director Nancy O'Hara who has successfully enlisted the assistance of many community groups to implement her efforts. Organizations such as Kingston Library, the local bar association, the county's mental health service, the Kingston school district and numerous private citizens have pooled their efforts in hopes of improving the lot of the inmates, trying to make the period of incarceration fruitful rather than simply a question of 'doing time'.

Under the programs instituted by Mrs. O'Hara education courses are held by instructors from the school district; guidance and counseling is provided by the mental health service and the Redemptorist Seminary; The Woodstock Artists' Association offers art courses and books; and periodicals are made available by the library and many concerned private citizens who also donate their time as volunteers. In fact, the inmates have also published five issues of their own newspaper.

Considering the dreary past history of the institution, when all such programs were frowned upon for alleged security reasons, progress definitely is being made in a much needed area. Sheriff Thomas Mayone, who has been receptive to these innovative programs, reports that tensions at the jail have lessened and credits the rehabilitation efforts for much of this. There is a good start here, and if the level of recidivism can be lowered because of this humane approach, much will have been accomplished.

Pension Ploy

One of the many reasons why New York City is undergoing debtor pangs was underscored recently when officials acknowledged that a bus driver who makes $13,000 a year can retire at the age of 50 with a pension of $16,000 a year.

This fringe benefit for bus drivers is possible because unions have pushed through laws which require pensions to be based on the income that a bus driver gets in his final year of employment. With understanding help from fellow drivers, busmen run up a lot of overtime in their last year of work. When they retire they can honestly say that they never had it so good.

We cannot assess whether things are so far gone in Fun City that nothing can be done about this travesty. We would, however, urge the federal government not to subsidize it, as New York suggests, with our tax dollars.

"When Congress is in recess, a Congressman owes it to his constituents to go on a factfinding tour. Right? Right!"

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—In the smoke-filled backrooms of Washington, Democratic party leaders are scheming and dreaming about the 1976 presidential race.

We have interviewed dozens of them and can report their sometimes surprising conclusions:

—The party bosses have all but given up hope that Senator Ted Kennedy will run. Our political sources say Kennedy has quietly assured his intimate advisors and financial backers that he will not change his mind. He has told them they are free to help the candidates of their choice.

—Senator Henry Jackson, blessed with bulging campaign coffers and labor backing, appeals to middle-class voters and appears to be the next most formidable candidate. But this could change overnight. The old curmudgeon of labor, AFL-CIO chief George Meany, has lost his ardor for Jackson, according to our sources, and is casting a flirtatious eye at Indiana Senator Birch Bayh.

—Bayh, meanwhile, has signed up Mike Feldman, a power in the Kennedy and McGovern camps, as his financial manager and is planning to test his presidential possibilities in the New Hampshire and Massachusetts primaries. If he makes a good showing, he will enter the Florida primary to see how well he can do in a southern state. Should he pick up George Meany's backing along the way, Bayh's political fortunes should soar.

—Many of the Democratic leaders privately feel the man they need to give a new look to their party is Idaho's Senator Frank Church. He has a youthful appearance, yet at the same time, he is an experienced national leader. He has a reputation for decency and integrity. But Church has refused to permit even his closest friends to push his candidacy as long as he is heading the Senate's probe of the CIA. He doesn't want to appear as if he is investigating the CIA for political purposes, he has told intimates. The CIA probe will not be completed until February, at the earliest, and some of Church's supporters, therefore, have begun to stray.

—Senator Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, like Henry Jackson, is shooting for conservative, middle-of-the-road support. His chances, the backroom polls feel, will increase as Jackson slips.

—Behind closed doors, none of the party leaders regard Alabama's Governor George Wallace seriously, except as a spoiler. The extent of Wallace's physical incapacity, say our sources, has yet to be revealed. He has to be propped up to watch television or make a speech. When the public learns the full story, the politicians believe, Wallace will be doomed. He will be unable to match the performance of Franklin Roosevelt, who won elections in a wheelchair. Roosevelt had to deal only with radio. Wallace, our sources point out, would find it impossible to hide his poor health from the searching television cameras.

—Liberal Democratic leaders have a soft spot for two "people's candidates," Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona and former Sen. Fren Harris of Oklahoma. Udall, especially, is regarded as an ideal candidate, with his Lincoln-esque looks and his Will Rogers sense of humor. The politicians have concluded, however, that neither of them can rally the support they need. Walking among the people it is felt, is still not the way to win national elections.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST: Hard-working Chairman Ray Garrett of the Securities and Exchange Commission prides himself on how his agency has recovered from the bad old days when it was run by the Watergate crowd.

But we have now caught Garrett in an apparent conflict of interest, with Watergate overtones. He jumped into a $35 million court case on the side of the giant First Boston investment firm. Yet he neglected to tell his fellow commissioners that he had once collected a huge law fee from First Boston.

The story is complex. It began in 1969 with an attempt by Chris-Craft to take over Piper Aircraft. This led to exhaustive litigation. The initial court decision showed that Chris-Craft had been the victim of SEC violations.

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—President Ford's erratic handling of the voting rights bill was superficially a political conquest of the best of two worlds but, beneath the surface, revealed dangerous incompetency persisting in his presidency after one year.

Southern newspaper headlines showed Mr. Ford embracing Southern opposition to the bill, while in fact his efforts were so late, so ambiguous and so feeble that he did not stir liberal wrath. However, the number of voters aware of this balancing act is minuscule. Rather, political insiders are impressed by bumbling and an apparent deviousness contradicting the true-blue sincerity which is Gerald Ford's greatest asset.

His political management of the Voting Rights Act, moreover, ranks with snubbing Alexander Solzhenitsyn and manhandling Nelson Rockefeller as profiles in incompetence. None of this has affected Mr. Ford's continuing popularity, partly because of lackluster Democratic challenges and Ronald Reagan's refusal to become an avowed Republican opponent. Nevertheless, the White House's propensity to bungle secondary political matters could yield future disaster.

The President's trouble with the Voting Rights Act renewal stemmed from the persistence of state chairman Clarke Reed of Mississippi, long a stalwart voice of Southern Republicanism. Beginning late last year he lobbied Ford to emulate Richard M. Nixon is proposing that possible federal intervention in voting should be extended from the Deep South to all 50 states. To Reed, this would test the new President's receptivity to the South.

Mr. Ford flunked. Reed had given up when he was advised of possible compromise in May, just as—coincidentally or not—Reagan seemed closer to challenging the President. The White House began considering this proposal by Assistant Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger: instead of proposing a 50-state extension, the President while signing the bill would declare present law administratively applicable in 50 states.

Predictably, the Pottinger option did not please Reed and other Southerners. Mr. Ford instinctively rejected it as a gimmick. Simultaneously, White House experts advised against a 50-state extension. Flying high among conservatives after the Mayaguez incident while vetoing batches of bills, the President ignored the voting rights renewal on the road to passage.

Coincidentally or not, Ford's interest revived as a Reagan for President committee was unveiled. Two days later, on July 17, the President crossed the Potomac to Arlington, Va., to address a Spanish-American organization. In a small, dark room that limited reporters and prevented television coverage, he belatedly endorsed a 50-state extension. With staffers digging up old drafts, Mr. Ford made the proposal official in a July 18 letter to Senate minority leader Hugh Scott.

All this was news to Pottinger and his boss, Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, supposedly the President's civil rights advisers. Nor was it given much publicity. But Ford's campaign manager, Howard (Bo) Callaway, was on the telephone informing Southern Republicans that the President was following Nixon's civil rights footsteps.

What built suspicion that this was mainly an exercise in Republican politics was nobody bothering to inform Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, the conservative Democrat sponsoring 50-state extension. Scott, a longtime civil rights advocate, had no desire to leak the President's July 18 letter. Stennis learned of Ford's new stance only when Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield on July 23 read an identical letter to him dated July 21.

Reed still felt the President had flunked his test. On that afternoon of July 23, he entered the White House to see staff chief Donald Rumsfeld and complained of too little, too late. Reed then changed the subject by criticizing the unannounced appointment as White House counsel of Mrs. Bobbie Kilberg, a leader of the liberal Republican Ripon Society and an advocate of what conservatives consider a quota system for Republican convention delegates. Reed was thereby telling Rumsfeld that voter rights convolutions could not erase conservative grievances.

Did the President really want his tardy 50-state extension to be passed? The answer came the next day, July 24, with liberal Senators worrying that the Stennis amendment might now pass. Reassurance from the Oval Office were relayed through Vice President Rockefeller and Sen. Scott: President Ford puts highest priority on passing the act and does not want his endorsement of a 50-state extension to endanger that goal. Thus did the President doom the Stennis amendment and later 50-state efforts.

Although Callaway now expresses "delight" over the President embracing the Southern cause, well-informed Southern Republicans have no illusions. That they may well end up with Ford anyway, particularly if Reagan remains inert, is no reason for Ford White House complacency over its year-old political operation on the eve of a presidential election campaign.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

The Horses in the Democratic Race

Chris-Craft filed a lawsuit against the alleged violators, among which was First Boston. The SEC entered the case "a friend of the court" on Chris-Craft's side. The record shows that Garrett at first supported the SEC position in favor of Chris-Craft and against First Boston.

Four months ago, a federal appellate court finally awarded Chris-Craft $25 million in damages and another $10 million in interest. This was a blow to First Boston, which might get stuck with paying most of the $35 million.

So First Boston sent its lawyers to Washington for a private conference with Garrett. He informed his fellow commissioners of the meeting, but he never mentioned that he had been paid a handsome fee by First Boston four years ago in a $50 million utility company stock issue.

Garrett also failed to notify Chris-Craft that he had met with their adversaries in the case. Nor did he invite Chris-Craft to present its side of the case.

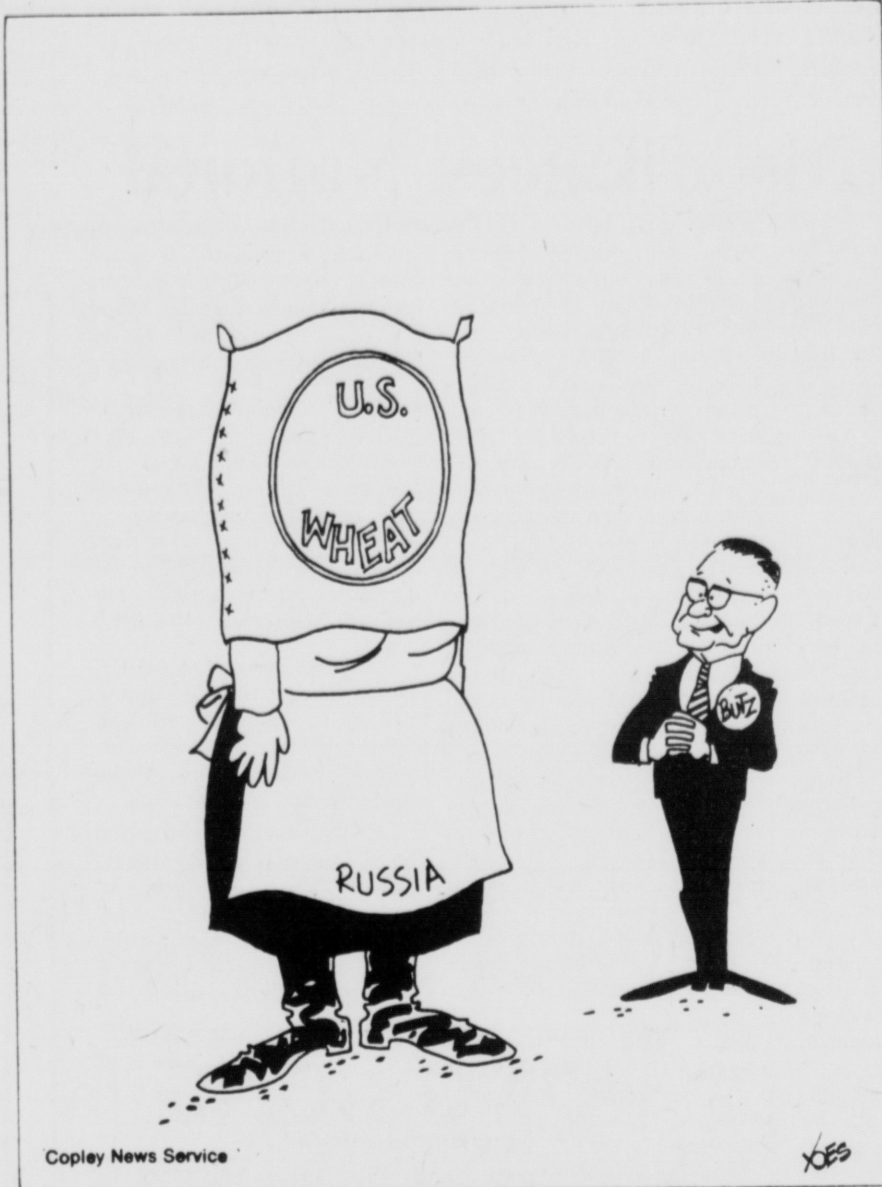

Instead, the SEC, with Garrett playing a leading role, backed down from its previous strong position and supported First Boston's petition for a rehearing. Garrett's new view was not accepted by the appellate court, but the court record is now headed for the Supreme Court, with no mention that the powerful SEC chairman might have a conflict of interest.

To Garrett's credit, he spoke to us frankly about his past association with First Boston. He said his lucrative work for First Boston in 1971 had completely slipped his mind. It was a one-shot thing, "a hello, good-bye situation," he said.

First Boston's president, Paul Miller, was also unaware of Garrett's previous role with his company. He was certain the company's lawyers also had no knowledge of it when they met with Garrett, Miller added.

A Chris-Craft spokesman said his firm had not been told of the ex parte meeting between Garrett and First Boston. He refused to comment on the case.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

An Interview with Jimmy Hoffa

Jimmy's bacon and eggs made a racket in a frying pan. "You'll get used to getting up early," Harold said. "If Jimmy gets up early, everybody gets up." I remembered. We were in a Teamster apartment. es Thomas Gregory of 5 Main Street, Hurley, mathematics teacher at J.was a challenge. The committee counsel was Robert F. Kennedy, a messy-haired man who awoke each morning swearing to "get Hoffa."

I wrote to Kennedy and asked to see him. He was too busy. Instead, he sent me four volumes of Senate interrogation of Hoffa. It took a week to read. I couldn't find one place where anyone charged him with being a crook. No charge, no proof.

Bill Hearst wanted an in-depth study of Mighty Mouse. He thought I could do it. My daughter Ginny has a father-in-law who was a Teamster official in Miami. I called Dave Frechette. He's as big as Gibbons — a man to ask for favors.

Dave phoned Hoffa. Hoffa said, "Is this guy Bishop on the level?" Frechette took a chance. "Yeah," he said. "He'll give you a fair shake."

So I was staying with Hoffa. And Jimmy was setting up an extension of his office phone so that I could listen in to all calls and make notes. I when the Teamsters negotiated a new contract. I even adjourned to the bathroom with them. That's where they discussed their rock-bottom demands.

I flew to Detroit. There I dined in Hoffa's home. The dining room was so small that Mrs. Hoffa had to pass the roast and mashed potatoes standing in the kitchen. Hoffa drove a Chevy. His subordinates had Cadillacs.

After two weeks I had enough notes. I wrote the articles. They weren't flattering to the little guy, but they didn't call him names either. He was a small flint with a big light. His only love, besides his family, was Local 299 Detroit.

The man who refused to see me — Robert F. Kennedy — wrote a protest to all my editors and publishers. They sent the blast to me; I responded to Kennedy. The following year, my income tax was audited. It has been audited every year since.

Some union leaders, such as Philip Murray and George Meany, burn steadily and last forever. Hoffa was a Roman candle. He fought everybody in the union until he got to the top. Then he had nobody to fight, except the government. This is called a no-win situation.

He made breakfast. The apartment was dark and cool. "Like your eggs?" he said. I shook my head. "Eggs are for lunch," I said. He laughed. "You get 'em tomorrow and the next day until you learn to like 'em."

Harold Gibbons winked. After breakfast I asked another 50 questions. Hoffa never hesitated with an answer about pension funds or investments. Neither did Gibbons.

Sometimes Hoffa talked tough. I asked what he thought of Robert Kennedy. "Whaddya want me to say?" he snarled. "That's the runt of the litter." I decided not to use the quote. Hoffa's weakness was in thinking he could win any fight.

Midwest Rains Will Aid Some Crops

By UPI
Thunderstorms dropped more than three inches of rain on parts of central Illinois, flooding basements and streets, but the heavy rains moved out of the state today. Showers and thunderstorms Monday night also ranged through the Rockies and from West Texas to the the Ohio Valley, along the Gulf of Mexico, and east of the Mississippi. However, the intensity of the storms diminished and most warnings expired by midnight. The Illinois storms produced a twister Monday night that struck the east edge of Rochester — a community of about 400 persons near Springfield — but no one was injured. The twister damaged the last house before the city limit and several grain bins kept behind it, a Sangamon County sheriff's office spokesman said. The thunderstorms also caused flooded streets and basements in Peoria, Ill.

In Texas, more than two inches of rain fell at Amarillo early today.

However, the rains did little to perk up corn crops in the central Plains and western Corn Belt. Soybean and sorghum crops have been helped by recent rains, but many corn crops already are beyond help, agriculture officials said Thursday.

"I think the corn is beyond any substantial improvement," Missouri Agriculture Director James Boillot said Thursday.

"But soybeans are another thing," he said. "I think this rain will help the soybeans tremendously."

Key Points Accord Reported in Mideast

By UPI

Israel and Egypt have reportedly agreed on all key points of an interim peace agreement that may bring Americans to the Middle East to man electronic spy equipment.

Diplomatic sources in Tel Aviv said Thursday the text of the new military disengagement agreement in the Sinai Desert should be ready for signing by Sept. 1.

The sources said Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is expected to start shuttling between Israel and Egypt on Wednesday to iron out the final details of the accord.

"It is very likely that Kissinger will resume his shuttle next week and there is optimism that agreement can be reached by Sept. 1," one source said. "By and large, the principles are more or less clear."

Diplomatic analysts in Washington said there are strong indications that American participation would be part of the new troop separation agreement.

Reports on the U.S.-mediated talks have mentioned the possible use of American civilians to man Israeli electronic spy equipment at the Mitla and Gidi mountain passes in the Sinai.

In Birmingham, Ala., Kissinger said Thursday "there is no agreement as of now" on the use of Americans in the desert to monitor Egyptian troop movements.

He said the administration has sounded out "certain congressional leaders in a general way about the concept. But we have not been able to put before them any concrete proposition."

"...If there is to be an American presence it will under no circumstances be a military presence," he said. "The only presence that could possibly be considered is a presence of American civilians..."

Shandaken Is Caught in Squeeze

SHANDAKEN

The Town of Shandaken is caught in a garbage squeeze with only 4½ months in which to find a remedy.

The largest crowd in the town's history, according to Supervisor Raymond Dunn, vented feelings Wednesday night in the small town meeting room with most speaking against the establishment of a town landfill site in Allaben.

Shandaken has been dumping its garbage in Woodstock, per an agreement between the two municipalities. That contract runs out Dec. 31, 1975, and Shandaken has no place to dump.

A petition was presented to the town board with about 100 signatures opposing the Allaben site. Dunn expressed frustration common to those seeking landfill sites when he said "Everywhere we go, nobody wants it."

He said he would approach the Woodstock Town Board and ask for an extension to the present contract, which contains a clause referring to "unforeseen circumstances" in opening the door for further contract negotiations.

Dunn stated that another $5,000 had to be transferred to the social services budget classification to deal with the largest number of welfare cases yet in Shandaken. This transfer "almost doubled" the welfare budget for this year, and is expected to be enough to last until Dec. 31.

And a recommendation by the town recreation commission to spend $100,000 to purchase the former Glenbrook Hotel property, with swimming pool, for town recreation was met with a divided response, with Dunn firmly opposing such an expenditure in light of the town's economic condition. The property is composed of about 70 acres. The hotel burned down some time ago. No action was taken by the board.

Abuse Program Set For Students

ELLENVILLE

A new program aimed at teenage alcohol and drug abuse will be instituted at Ellenville High School this September.

According to Superintendent James Evergetis, the program will be conducted on a voluntary, group basis for students in grades 7-12.

Personnel from the Ulster County Committee for Mental Health Services will instruct and counsel at the high school building. Regular staff will not be involved in instruction.

The program is a revitalization of a drug program held in the district two years ago, but it is the first time that alcohol abuse has been directly introduced as a subject through the school system.

Another special course is being continued in the district for "students who do not function well in the school setting," said Evergetis. This includes a broad spectrum of students with difficulties for a "multitude of reasons," he said, and is called CORE.

The Title One reading and mathematics program will extend through the regular school year for the first time in the Ellenville district, and five Title One teachers were hired by the school board this week for that program, funded federally. Formerly, the Title One program for special help in reading and math was restricted to summer months.

The board this week also adopted a salary schedule for custodians under the CSEA one-year contract that will average a 7.18 percent salary raise for custodians, ranging from six to ten percent.

And Dean of Students Robert Ellison had his contract renewed for one year. He is in charge of discipline at the high school level.

Bergman Accountant Enters Guilty Plea

NEW YORK (UPI) —

Samuel Dachowitz, the accountant for indicted nursing home owner Bernard Bergman, has pleaded guilty to federal fraud charges and is cooperating with federal and state prosecutors in the Bergman case.

Dachowitz became the second Bergman aide to enter a guilty plea in connection with extensive probes of the nursing home industry.

Last Monday, Mark Loren, the administrator of the Towers Nursing Home from 1970 to 1973, pleaded guilty to a federal conspiracy charge after waiving indictment and disclosing he was cooperating with prosecutors.

The 57-year-old Dachowitz admitted in U.S. District Court Thursday to conspiring with Bergman and his son, Stanley Bergman, to file $1.2 million in false Medicaid claims and conceal the existence of 11 secret partners, including Dachowitz himself, in the Towers Home. He pleaded to a criminal information filed in lieu of an indictment.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Kenneth R. Feinberg said

Dachowitz "cooperated and more specifically, will be cooperating in the future" with federal prosecutors.

"We will make his cooperation known, the nature of it and the extent of it, to the sentencing judge...and to other law enforcement agencies," Feinberg said.

Dachowitz pleaded guilty to conspiracy, tax fraud, and filing false statements with the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare. The first and third charges each carry maximum penalties of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine; the tax charge carries a maximum three-year, $5,000 penalty.

Judge Charles E. Stewart Jr. deferred sentencing.

Dachowitz still faces prosecution with the Bergmans in a 10-count state indictment obtained by special nursing home prosecutor Charles J. Hynes.

Dachowitz's lawyer, Robert J. Lazarus, said outside the courtroom the accountant "has also been cooperating with other prosecuting agencies...including Mr. Hynes."

Dachowitz has pleaded innocent to the state charges.

Bergman, who with his son has also pleaded innocent to state charges, has sought to place blame for any wrongdoing on Dachowitz, "the accountant we trusted."

The Bergmans will enter a plea to the federal charges Aug. 18.

Veto Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The regional director of the Army Corps of Engineers has followed the lead of three governors and is asking for a veto of the Tocks Island Dam project on the upper Delaware River.

Brig. Gen James L. Kelly, the head of the Army Corps of Engineers North Atlantic Division, said in a report to his headquarters that the project should be "deauthorized so that alternative plans to meet the needs of the region will be developed."

Kelly's recommendation followed the veto of the $400 million plan July 31 by the governors of New York, New Jersey and Delaware. Only the governor of Pennsylvania, among the four states involved, approved the plan.

'Happy Times' At German Alps Festival

HUNTER
Schuhplattler dancing, Alpine horn players from Bavaria, Germany; German and area craftsmen, a puppet show, the usual delicious German foodstuffs and of course, lots of the sudsy stuff.

Put these all together and you have the German Alps Festival.

The third edition of the Festival was held recently at beautiful Hunter Mountain and judging from the comments of the thousands who attended this year's German Oktoberfest-styled attraction, a grand time was had by all.

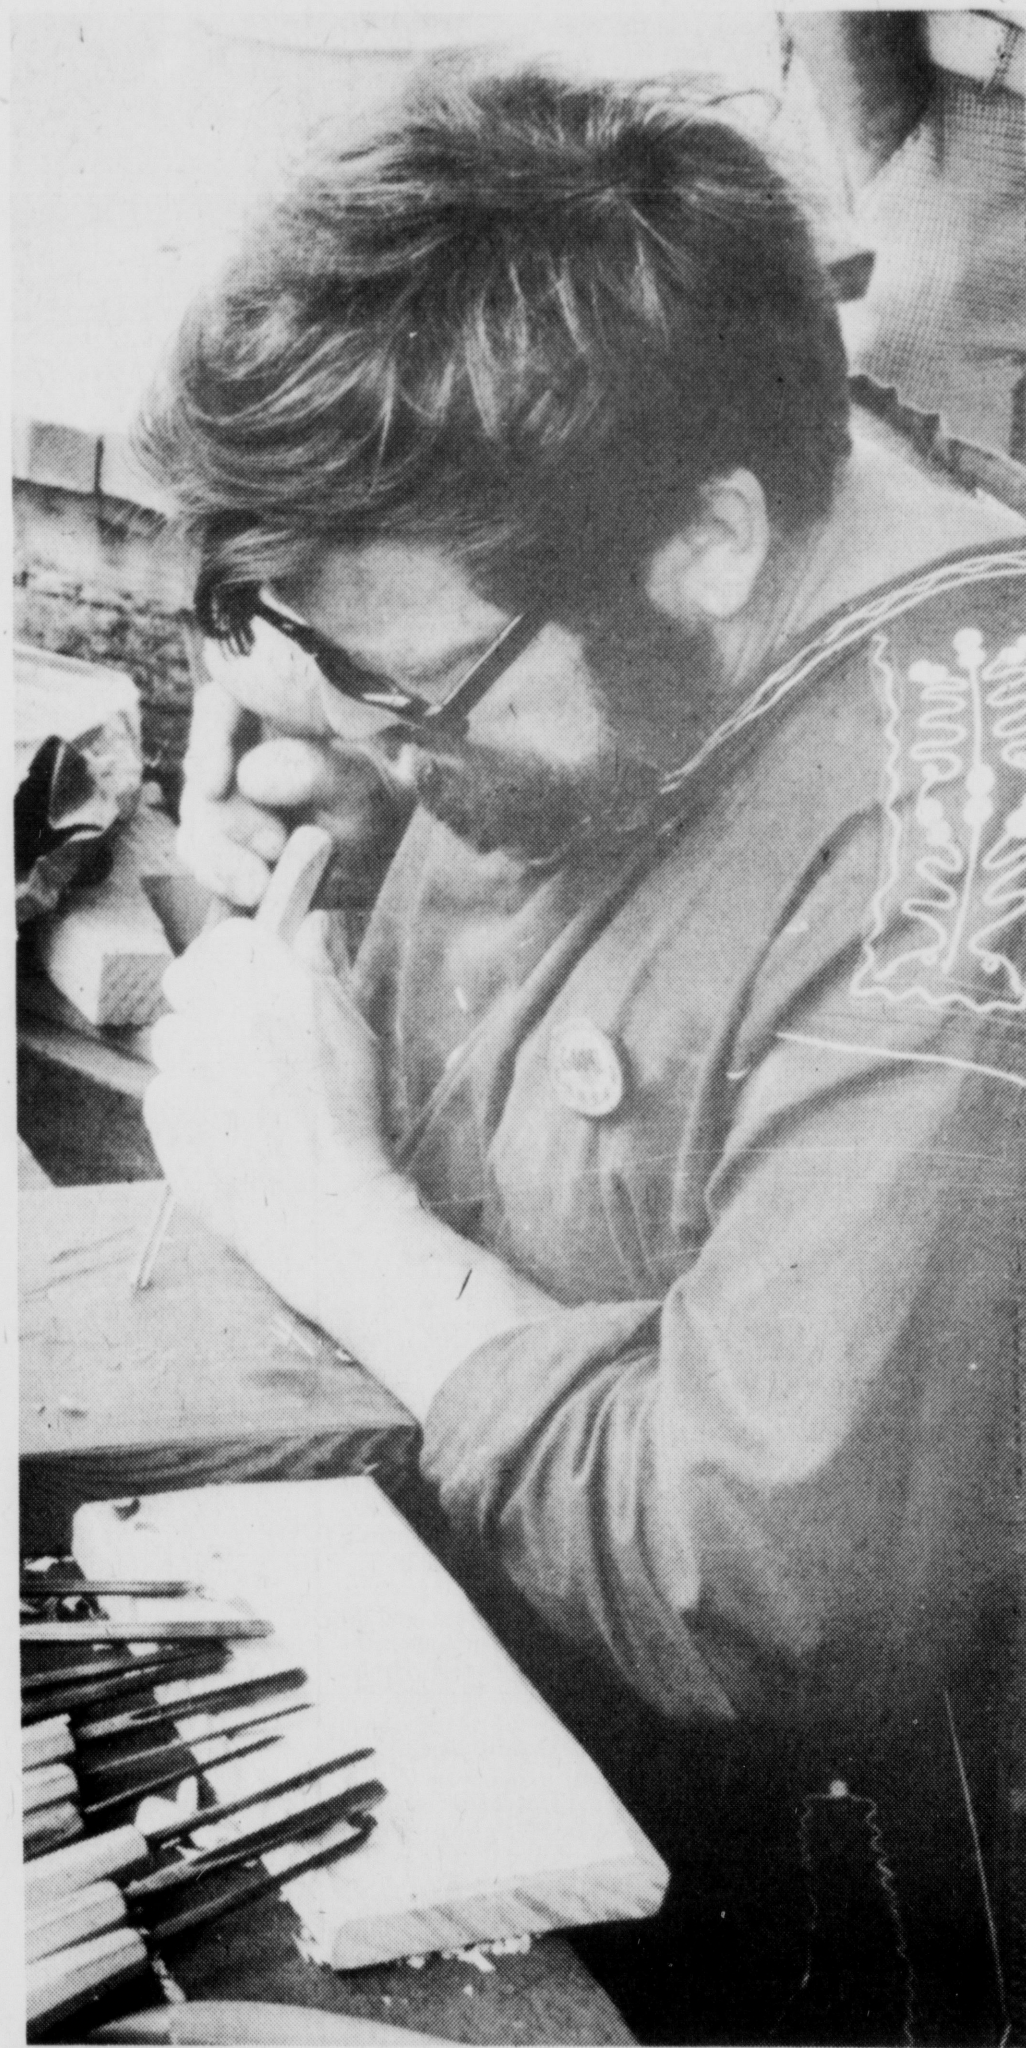

The Festival, formerly held at Purling in Greene County, attracted crowds from far and near and offered other such delights as a puppet show for the small fry, the Bavarian "train" touring the entire site, roving musicians, the all new Alpenhaus Pavilion featuring as one of its international exhibits Hummelwerk, bellringers, yodeler and a lot more.

From morning until late at night the German Alps Festival presented a wide variety of happenings to suit the tastes of both young and old.

Sum it all up, the recent Festival was just "Happy Times" in the Catskill Mountains.

More people in the United States shared a few moments of a Maverick Chamber Music concert on the CBS Evening News last Saturday than during the entire 60 years that these concerts have been given.

to film and record the famed Eastern Brass Quintet which performed on July 6, and narrated this documentary.

During Broun's introduction, films were shown of the Woodstock Rock Festival of 10 years ago. Broun stressed the fact that, despite its name, that festival was not held in Woodstock but some 60 miles to the southwest in Sullivan County.

'Spring' . . . . A Serious Play Set to Music

By Dorothy A. Narel

WOODSTOCK

A serious play set to music, Prague Spring, opened in a premiere performance Wednesday night at the Woodstock Playhouse. Written by Emmy Award winner Lee Kalcheim, the production is excellent with new, bright satirical music by Joseph G. Raposo and a top flight professional cast capable of maintaining fantastic continuity between fast changing characterizations.

to such music as Something to Believe, See You Again in Better Times, and Will the Sun. Slack has been seen in such movies as Serpico, Man on a Swing, Law and Order and Dragonfly.

Lewis Art appears as Player 1 and Husak, party leader who, when his own job is threatened, agrees to the Soviets' terms and remains in office. Arlt gives an outstanding performance. For the past three years he has been a member of wealth of clever, punchy lines. Included in the fun sector: "Which is the most neutral country in the world? Czechoslovakia—because we don't even interfere in our own affairs!"

The cabaret-musical is worth seeing just for some of the songs: The Guilty Song, Song of Opposites, Ivan Come Home. The music reflects the anti-socialist and anti-Soviet sentiments of the people.

Kalcheim also told LIFE that the Woodstock Playhouse was doing justice to his play. According to current plans, the play goes to Cleveland and then to off-Broadway.

Prague Spring continues on stage through this week with a final performance on Sunday, Aug. 17 at 7 p.m. All other curtains are at 8:30 with a Saturday matinee at 2:30.

If you liked Cabaret—you will love Prague Spring! I recommend it.

"If you liked 'Cabaret' . . . you'll love 'Prague Spring.'"

The subject is heavy—the rise and fall of the Czechoslovakian leader Alexander Dubcek. But as the playwright told LIFE in an exclusive interview earlier in the week:

"There's a lot of music in this play—a lot of comedy because the Czechs are funny people—even about their own failures. The subject, however, is serious. There is no way of making that funny."

Kalcheim told LIFE the show was originally commissioned by Gordan Davidson for the Mark Taper Forum in Los Angeles. It was done as a workshop production on the west coast with a large cast. "It didn't seem to work for me. I got the idea of creating a cabaret-type group and this cast of six is the finished product," the author said.

Prague Spring concerns itself with Alexander Dubcek's expulsion from the Czechoslovak Communist Party thus symbolizing the complete subjugation of that country to Soviet authority. Dubcek had been leader of his country's Communist Party and the chief architect of Czechoslovakia's political and economic reforms which were abruptly ended by the Soviet Army's occupation of the country in August 1968.

Kalcheim became interested in the Dubcek story just through reading about it but he maintains one need not know the historical facts in order to enjoy the play. This is true. The play speaks for itself. "It was written for Americans," Kalcheim told LIFE.

Kalcheim, who creates scripts for All in the Family, for which he won an Emmy, also wrote "Class of 1963" for ABC's Movie of the Week and was responsible for the Broadway musical Hurry Harry.

Ben Slack, a veteran performer on stage, TV and films, gives a moving performance of the man who, trained by the Russians, believes in the socialist system, is ultimately destroyed by the same system. His characterization gives rise the resident company at the Loretto-Hilton Repertory Theatre in St. Louis. He also teaches voice and speech at St. Louis' Webster College Theatre Arts Conservatory. He is a resident of Woodstock.

Also giving incredible performances in their dual roles are David Berman as Player 3 and Kriegel, Linda Geiser, Player 4 and Anna; and Elliot Cuker, Player 5 and Breznev.

Berman comes to Woodstock from a summer of work on new plays at the O'Neil Theatre Center's National Playwrights' Conference and the E.P. Conkle Playwrights' Workshop in Austin, Texas. Last season he was with the Tew Repertory Project in Rhode Island working on six premiere productions including new plays by Lee Kalcheim, Gagliana and Wanshell.

Brooks, who has worked with the National Playwrights' Conference at the O'Neill Theatre Center, has appeared with the New Repertory Project of Rhode Island in Prague Spring and in Fog and Mismanagement by Jeff Wanshell.

Linda Geiser, whose credits include stage, TV and film, was on Broadway in The Devils and Ivanov and played Holga in the National Tour of Arthur Miller's After the Fall. Her film credits include The Pawnbroker and The Night They Raided Minsky's.

Cuker has been involved in almost every aspect of the theatre and screen as an actor, singer, director and writer. On TV he was featured on The Hawk with Burt Reynolds and N.Y.P.D. He is also the teacher of the B.O.C.E.S. Cultural Arts Center in Long Island.

Prague Spring, which is directed by Isaac Schambelan with musical direction by Charles Cofone, has a

Secretary Broke from Treating Boss to Coffee

By Abigail Van Buren

1975 by Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago a new lady boss came to work in the firm where I am a secretary.

She began asking me to please get her a cup of coffee or a candy bar. (We have dispensing machines.) She is always in a hurry, rushing to another meeting, and never has her purse with her. Of course, I oblige. She is so lady-like and has such lovely manners, I thought she would reimburse me, but she never has.

Abby, I like my job and don't want to make a big deal out of it, but over the months her coffee and candy bars have put a hole in my budget.

What would be a tactful way of handling this without appearing cheap, embarrassing my boss or getting stuck for more?

STUCK

DEAR STUCK: It's not "cheap" to ask for what is owed you. But you will have to make a choice between recouping your losses and sparing the lady boss from embarrassment. As for protection against being stuck again: When she asks for something from the machine, ask her for the change because you're "fresh out."

DEAR ABBY: I have an uncle who calls himself "Doctor" because he was given an honorary degree at some little obscure college to which he gave a lot of money after he struck it rich.

He introduces himself as "Doctor." When he makes reservations for trips and even at restaurants, he always makes it in the name of "Doctor So and So." Is it legitimate for him to do this? He didn't even graduate from high school.

NO NAMES

DEAR NO: Persons who appropriate the title "Doctor" solely upon the pretense of an honorary degree are reaching for self-esteem and are rather pathetic. But your uncle is harming no one, so let it ride.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN TERRIBLE TROUBLE AT 15": Feeling as you do—that abortion is "murder"—get in touch with "BIRTHRIGHT, INC." at once. They are listed in your phone book and stand ready to give you friendly and helpful counseling.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Circus Coming to High Falls on Monday

The Royal Wild West Circus will be at the Carlton Beach Field, Lucas Avenue, in High Falls on Monday with two performances at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sponsors of the circus are the High Falls Fire Company and the Marletown First Aid Unit. Professor Tandy and his Canine College All Stars will be one of the many featured attractions.

Plant Booth Added to Auction

Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel has announced an addition of a "Flower and Plant Booth" at its auction scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 24, at 243 Albany Avenue. Flowers and plants grown by Warren Stone will be available to the public. The auction is slated for 12:30 p.m., with a viewing at 11:30 a.m. The public is invited.

Helen Merritt at Final Concert of Templemont Series

The final concert of the 1975 series will be presented at Templemont, Clum Hill Road in Tannersville at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m., Saturday Aug. 16th.

Helen Merritt, Soprano, will sing songs from the whole spectrum of vocal music, accompanied by Richard Bower and assisted by the young singers who have been studying at Templemont for the past two weeks. Best known for her Church and Oratorio work, Ms. Merritt is equally at home in the fields of Opera, Light Opera and Musical Comedy.

A native of Rensselaer County, Ms. Merritt has come to Tannersville after an impressive career in all types of musical expression. She has performed in all of the major concert halls in New York City, with such groups as the Masterwork Chorus, the New York Choral Society and many others. As soloist at St. Bartholomew's Church for eight years and at the Church of the Ascension for seven years before that, Ms. Merritt gained a reputation as the finest Oratorio Soprano in the Metropolitan area. She is in constant demand as a soloist in Oratorio because of her knowledge of the repertoire.

Ms. Merritt is Prima Donna of the Gotham Light Opera

Company, and starred in the opening of the Ancram Opera House last April. Repeated engagements with the Octavo Singers in Schenectady have earned her rave notices.

After an early experience on Broadway in the original cast of "The King and I", Ms. Merritt went on to marriage and four children. She continued her career in spite of the demands of a growing family, and developed successful studios for voice teaching in New York City and Weckoff, N.J. She is adjunct teacher at William Paterson College in New Jersey and New York University Washington Square Campus. Ms. Merritt is preparing a lecture-demonstration series for presentation to church choirs and other groups interested in better understanding of the voice.

The dream of developing Templemont as a Summer Music School is well on the way to being realized. Several weeks of work with resident students have proven that the plan has a future.

Citizen 'Watchdog Agencies' Help Minimize Pollution of Hudson

(Editor's note: Part one recorded official Department of Environmental Conservation comments on the status of progress in cleaning up the Hudson River. Part two results from interviews with involved private citizens.)

Last of Series

By Tim Schuster

LITTLE noted in last week's headline story on the contamination of Hudson River bass with the industrial pollutant chemical PCB was the fact that two General Electric plants involved reportedly had state permits to dump toxic waste in the river.

John Harris Cronin is the sole fulltime paid staff member of Pipewatch, a citizen watchdog agency now associated with Hudson River Sloop Restoration, Inc. and the sloop Clearwater. His self-acknowledged expertise lies in industrial pollution and the citizen's recourse through the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the 1972 Water Pollution Control Act.

"One would think that all industries on the river are routinely checked on, but they are not," he stated. The reason: the number of polluters is so great that the EPA and state DEC don't have the money and manpower.

Cronin acknowledged that "permits are a good idea," but pointed out that industries are violating permits, some are simply not getting permits, and there are "still a lot of violations of the 1972 act."

The stated goal of the act is to eliminate all water pollution by 1985. "It could not possibly work unless there were strict enforcement," said Cronin. The EPA has been "extremely helpful" in his efforts, he reported.

The DEC is also attempting to enlist the aid of citizen volunteers through a program entitled "Water Watchers." What practical results has Pipewatch, the 1974 brainchild of Riverkeeper Tom Whyatt, achieved in its short existence?

The most notable case, said Cronin, involved research that led to the turning in to federal authorities Tuck Industries of Beacon last August for industrial wastewater pollution.

Seven months later the ULSL Attorney's office named Tuck on 24 counts of pollution, the equivalent of a grand jury indictment in a criminal case. Tuck is pleading not guilty. "The wheels of justice grind exceedingly slow," quoted Cronin. In his opinion, "If the river is getting cleaner at all it is due to the incredible number of interested citizens we have in the Hudson Valley. The longevity of the Clearwater attests to this." Cronin feels that the burden of enforcing the 1972 act is primarily on the citizens' shoulders.

Erik Kiviat is assistant professor of natural history and director of the Bard College field station on the Hudson. He feels that the "middle of the Hudson estuary is relatively unpolluted," noting it is used for drinking water at Poughkeepsie, Rhinebeck, and Port Ewen.

While gratified that there is an increase in the number of municipal sewerage treatment plants, he is concerned with the effects of pumping greater quantities of secondary sewerage into the river. "Toxic metals are sometimes found in local high concentrations," he noted in one report, "and nutrient levels are increasing as a result of routing wastes into the estuary via new secondary sewerage treatment plants." Use of new plants means that much sewerage formerly disposed of through septic tanks and leeching now is added to the river.

He claims that a lot of nutrients, nitrates and phosphates, in the form used by plants creates an imbalance in the ecosystem, and he is a fervent advocate of protection of the marshes along the Hudson's shores. The brackish marshes below Poughkeepsie have been referred to as natural tertiary sewerage treatment plants, and it is felt the fresh water tidal marshes in the Mid-Hudson serve much the same purpose, cleansing impurities from the water.

Kiviat acknowledged that some types of industrial pollution have been ameliorated by the DEC and Hudson River Pipewatch, and the elimination of the use of DDT as a pesticide has helped, but he has suggested further intensive study of the ways in which the various lifeforms, including human being, contribute to the natural balance of the Hudson River and, ultimately, to their mutual well-being.

State Back On Top of Roof Controversy

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

The Senate House controversy has taken another twist and this time it looks like the state is back on top.

John G. Waite, chief of the state's Bureau of Restoration and Preservation, says that despite what City Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe says, the fire retardant roof shingle roof the state plans to put on the Senate House meets city building codes.

Radcliffe created something of a tempest last Friday when he wrote Alderman Clarence Stoutenburg, (D-Fourth Ward) and WHITA and the Landmarks Commission that according to his interpretation wood shingle roof was not allowed by the city building code, which is in fact the state building code, adopted by the city in 1964.

Radcliffe's decision came on the heels of a public hearing on the matter (on Aug. 6) and a unanimous vote by the Senate House trustees for a new roof the following day.

Thomas Cerwonka, a professional engineer who led the fight to retain and repair the existing 55-year old copper roof, went so far as to suggest that the state had been ignorant of its own building codes when it drew up specifications for the new roof. Cerwonka had charged throughout the controversy that the state had "failed to do its homework" on the Senate House roof.

"That was not the case at all," Waite told the Freeman from his Albany office. "We were well aware of the city's fire codes. George Hutton (a Kingston architect who designed the new roof) was fully aware of it and we were fully aware of it."

Waite suggested that Radcliffe—who left town on vacation shortly after issuing his ruling—is the one who is not aware of the facts. "We've had no communications from the building department of Kingston," he said, "and as far as we know Mr. Radcliffe has never studied the specifications."

Waite said that Radcliffe might have been laboring under the misconception that a plain wooden shingle roof was being installed.

"First of all it is not a plain shingle roof," Waite said. "It is a fire retardant western red cedar shingle impregnated under pressure with fire retardant salts to fill the pores. You can stick it right into a blow torch and it will not support combustion."

Waite said further that the state does not have to meet city building codes, although adding, "as far as we can determine, the roof does meet the building code."

He said the city building code calls for a better than class three roof (a copper roof is a class two roof) on any building that is within 20 feet of another building and which has a roof surface of more than 2,500 square feet. Waite says the Senate House is a "free standing" building with "just under" 2,500 square feet of surface. Cerwonka says the figures are 2,610 square feet and 15 feet from the nearest building.

Waite further revealed that the Hoffman House on North Front Street and Green Street "has exactly the same kind of (proposed) roof and that it was approved by city officials."

"In fact, they consulted with us," Waite said. "It was the city's decision to put up that kind of roof." The Hoffman House was restored externally by the urban renewal agency two years ago.

While the state apparently considers the Senate House issue closed—Waite says that construction will start as soon as possible—opponents, namely Cerwonka, still want the state to repair the existing copper roof.

Cerwonka told the Freeman today he has notified state officials that representatives of the Copper Development Association and the Revere Copper and Brass Company are willing to make an inspection of the Senate House roof at no cost. "We would put together information and sketches of repair details suitable for a sheet metal mechanic," Cerwonka wrote.

"In as much as over 95 percent of the 50-year-old roof is stabilized, if we carry out this alternative it is likely that the roof will be trouble-free at least until the next centennial in 2076," he concluded.

Legislature Tables Welfare Fund Measure

KINGSTON

The opportunity to vote on an additional $3.5 million for welfare in Ulster County never came Thursday night but the county legislature showed its grave concern for spiraling welfare costs by tabling four resolutions providing for the appropriation.

Following the lead of Orangetown County which recently refused to borrow money to meet its welfare costs, a number of Ulster legislators said they wanted the opportunity to vote "no" because "it's time to put on the brakes."

They may get that opportunity soon however, for Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savao adjourned Thursday nights meeting at the call of the chair in order that the county board may reconvene to consider the problem before the next regular meeting. Welfare funds are reportedly due to run out in mid-September.

Savao also announced to the legislature that he is appointing a committee to meet with local representatives of the state legislature and the congress "for the purpose of studying and reviewing the fragmentation of the social services law."

Blaming the state and federal government for "horrendous inequities" in funding and for the mandates that impose hardships on local government, William R. West (R-Dist. 4) said that many states other than New York put little or no local dollars into their welfare programs with the bulk of the money coming from the federal government.

"We should vote the appropriation down and let them (the state and federal government) come to us to find out what the problem is," he suggested.

Our welfare bureaucracy is eating us alive," said Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf (R-Dist. 2), who like West said he was not opposed to helping "those who cannot help themselves."

But, Elmendorf said, "It destroys the welfare recipients incentive to take care of himself. It destroys the incentive of the honest, hard-working small homeowner who has to continue to foot the bill for welfare programs."

He blamed the increasing liberalization of welfare programs saying "the great minds" in Washington and Albany gear the program to the large urban areas where the cost of living is much higher than in the rural areas "yet we must pay the same substance allowances."

Lauding Orange County for its courageous stand, Elmendorf suggested that if more local legislative bodies followed suit "maybe Washington and Albany would hear middle income America shouting for help."

Prior to the vote to table the resolutions, George Barthel (D-Dist. 7) suggested that the legislature use surplus money for picking up the additional welfare tab. But Savao pointed out that the county cannot declare a surplus until October when all revenue and appropriation figures are in.

Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer is asking for the additional funds said he has to operate an agency and that the fact that the present funds will run out in about four weeks is no surprise. He said he publicly predicted last April that more money would be needed before the year was out.

Trapnell Resigns

ELLENVILLE

Last week Ellenville Village Manager Modris Pukulis announced he is leaving his post to take a similar position in Maine. Now Ellenville Village Police Chief William C. Trapnell is joining the ranks of the departing.

Trapnell told the village board at a closed-door session Wednesday night that he will be leaving no later than Sept. 12 to become director of police in Bound Brook, N. J.

"I've been looking for another position for some time," Trapnell told the Freeman, explaining that he will be making "considerably more" than his current $15,000 salary in the new position. He said the Bound Brook Police Department currently consists of 25 men, and there are plans to expand the department.

Trapnell refused to cite as a reason for moving on a recent shake-up in the Ellenville Police Department, which included reduction in the size of the force and orders from the new mayor, Jerome Elkin, that Trapnell wear a uniform to work and walk a beat "every day that he is on duty."

Pukulis, in announcing that he was leaving last week, cited "personal reasons." But he, too, was ordered to take to the streets by the new mayor in April.

Trapnell has been the Ellenville police chief since 1970. He served "temporarily" in that position until March 1974, when the appointment was made permanent.

Elkin could not be reached for comment Thursday. But Pukulis, whose resignation becomes effective Aug. 29, explained that no decision was made at the closed-door session, which he attended, as to when or how the vacant police chief position will be filled. "There's no question the position will be filled," Pukulis said.

Rochester Planners

ROCHESTER

Rochester Planning Board approved a small subdivision this week proposed by Sages Farm Inc., on Berne Road, Kerhonkson. The original proposal for eight lots was later reduced to two lots, each of considerable size.

It is anticipated that the planners will consider several more subdivision proposals at the board's next meeting Sept. 9.

Anderson Retires

By UPI

It was Jan. 12, 1966, and the Green Bay Packers were playing the Kansas City Chiefs in the first Super Bowl. Fred "the Hammer" Williamson lay stretched out on the field, his mind in a fog.

"Donny must have hit him with his wallet," cracked a Packer defensive lineman on the sidelines as Williamson was helped from the field.

The quip typified the regard in which Donny Anderson was held. He was one of the glamor signees in the pro football war of the early 1960s, raking in an estimated $650,000 from Vince Lombardi's Packers to join the National Football League.

While Anderson managed to play well with the Packers, he never achieved the superstar status expected of him when he signed his lucrative contract. He was dealt to St. Louis three years ago and this past spring was traded to Miami for wide receiver Marlin Briscoe. The end of the line came Thursday when Anderson announced his retirement at age 32.

"It's time to face realities," Anderson said. "I didn't think I could contribute as well as I thought I could when I came to camp. I suppose I could hang on but I like to be a front runner. It would be disappointing to me if I was put into a situation where I had to perform and I didn't do it."

"When you get older, you don't heal as fast as you used to. I don't want to be 50 and crippled, unable to support my family or play golf or go fishing. But football's been good to me. I've had a lot of good times and some unfortunate times."

Anderson said he'll return to a real estate and insurance business in Dallas.

In his nine NFL seasons, Anderson carried 1,197 times for 4,696 yards and scored 41 touchdowns. He caught 209 passes for 2,548 yards and 14 TDs and punted for a 39.9 average.

Another highly regarded collegian of a more recent vintage also found himself out of the job today. David Jaynes, heralded as one of the top passers in the nation at Kansas two years ago, was released by Atlanta. The Falcons said

Jaynes, obtained last month from Kansas City for wide receiver Tom Gerredine, had a sore arm.

Elsewhere, the New York Jets announced that David Knight, a starting wide receiver, will undergo surgery Monday to repair cartilage damage to his left knee. Knight, who earned a starting job last season and was the Jets' second leading receiver, is expected to be out for two months.

The Jets also said that quarterback Joe Namath suffered a slight muscle pull in his right side during a passing drill but that he would be ready to start in a pre-season game against St. Louis Saturday night.

Tight end Mike Hancock, obtained from Washington on Wednesday, failed the Buffalo Bills' physical and was returned to the Redskins.

Philadelphia picked up rookie guard John Nessel of Penn State on waivers from Atlanta and Green Bay obtained second year running back Terry Wells from Houston. Rookie defensive back Bill Deery pulled a muscle in a Pittsburgh Steeler workout and joins starters Ernie Holmes and Mel Blount and reserve Reggie Harrison on the injured list for Saturday's game against Oakland.

Detroit obtained veteran defensive back Hon-or Jackson on waivers from the New York Giants, who also released barefoot kicker Ricky Townsend of Tennessee.

Buffalo plays host to Cincinnati tonight to open the four-day weekend pre-season schedule. Wide receiver J.D. Hill will be out for Buffalo with a thigh bruise and free safety Tony Greene has been sidelined for six weeks with a broken collarbone.

In Saturday games, Atlanta meets Baltimore at Lincoln, Neb., Chicago takes on Green Bay at Milwaukee, San Francisco is at Los Angeles, the Jets at St. Louis, Washington at Houston, Detroit at Miami, Philadelphia at Cleveland, the Giants at San Diego and Denver at New Orleans. On Sunday, Pittsburgh takes on Oakland at Berkeley, Calif., and Minnesota is at New England and Monday night, Dallas is at Kansas City.

Kalaka Sues Player

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — A referee who was clobbered during a college football game last Nov. 16 by a player he had ejected filed suit Thursday to collect damages.

Arthur Kalaka of Wappinger Falls, N.Y., charged defensive lineman Tyrone Williams of Fairleigh Dickinson-Madison sneaked up behind him while he was signalling a second down and hit him on the back of the head, knocking him out for several hours. Kalaka was hospitalized for several days.

Williams, who was convicted Jan. 6 for assault and battery, had been ejected by Kalaka earlier in the game for unsportsmanlike conduct.

The incident occurred at Wightman Field during the first half of a game with William Paterson.

Also named in the suit were Fairleigh Dickinson and two school officials, Athletic Director Robert T. Shields and head football coach William Klika. The dollar amount of damages were not specified.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI) — Foolish Pleasure, who was expected to battle seven rivals in Saturday's $100,000 added Travers Stakes, was declared out of the race today by trainer LeRoy Jolley.

"I had only three works into the horse because of the heavy rains up here," Jolley said in explaining why he was not entering his Kentucky Derby winner. "The condition of the track for the morning workouts was such that this was all he could be worked out. I don't think he's up to the 1 1/4 miles and I won't enter him unless he's absolutely ready."

"I wouldn't want to enter him today, then disappoint the crowd by scratching him at post time."

Although Jolley cited the track's past condition, when heavy rains kept the colt from his regular workout schedule, year-old stakes, a factor which Jolley did not mention also doubtlessly played a key role. The What A Pleasure-Fool Me Not colt had no firm commitment for a jockey. Jacinto Vasquez, Foolish Pleasure's regular jockey, is Baeza, who rode last year's 2-year-old champion in his last start in the ill-fated match race with then-undefeated Ruffian, was committed to Wajima, a $600,000 yearling of East-West Stable. Then Jorge Velasquez's ser-agent that at the last minute Velasquez had decided to accept the mount aboard Group Plan, who will be running in Saturday's $100,000 added Haskell at Monmouth Park, e has a record of 12 wins in 15 lifetime starts. His only losses have come this year, when he was second in the Preakness to Master Derby and placed behind Avatar in the Belmont. His other loss was in the Florida Derby, third behind Prince Thou Art, one of the foes Foolish Pleasure would have faced in the Travers.

Foolish Pleasure is expected to start next in the 1 1/8 mile Governor at Belmont Park on Sept. 1.

Bosman Eliminates the Negative

OAKLAND (UPI) — Pitcher Dick Bosman is proof positive that good things happen when you accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative. He hurled a five-hitter Thursday afternoon as the Oakland A's beat the New York Yankees 5-1 to move six games up on idle Kansas City in the A.L. West.

Bosman was 0-2 when he was obtained from Cleveland earlier this year and now is 8-4 after taking eight of his 10 decisions with Oakland.

"I'm a student of positive thinking," said Bosman, "and I don't think there are any negative thinkers on this ballclub. Even though Joe Rudi is injured and even though some of our big hitters are in a slump, I think our players know they're going to come back, start a winning streak and win the division again."

The A's may be able to stretch out their lead a bit since A.L. weak sisters Milwaukee and Detroit form the opposition for the next six home games. Vida Blue goes for win No. 17 tonight against Jim Colborn (7-9) of the Brewers. Blue has lost eight.

Oakland Thursday revealed that Rudi's injury is worse than originally announced. He has torn ligaments in his left hand and will be out from two to six weeks.

The A's also released veteran hurler Jim Perry to make room on the roster for newly acquired Tommy Harper, who is filling in for Rudi. Perry, who has combined with brother Gaylord for the all-time number of victories by pitching brothers, was 3-4 for the A's and 4-10 overall.

Bill North's single snapped a tie in the eighth inning Thursday before an afternoon crowd of 14,140. With 19 home dates to go, the A's already have surpassed last year's attendance.

Bosman and loser Rudy May, 11-8, were hooked in a 1-1 game when May walked leadoff man Phil Garner in the eighth. He was replaced by pinch runner Matt Alexander, who was sacrificed to second by Bert Campaneris and then scored the go-ahead run on North's single. North took second when centerfielder Rich Coggins bobbled the ball and then scored on shortstop Fred Stanley's bad throw of an infield single by Claudell Washington.

Washington advanced to third on a fly ball and scored on an infield single by Gene Tenace, who then scored himself on Sal Bando's double and a wild pitch by reliever Ron Guidry.

Bosman gave up only five singles, walked one and fanned five. The only New York run came in the fourth when Bobby Bonds singled, went to second on an infield out and scored on a single by Roy White.

Chicago defeated Cleveland 6-4 and California downed Boston 5-3 in the other American League games. In the National League, Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh 6-1, Atlanta downed St. Louis 6-4, San Francisco ripped Montreal 9-2 and Chicago topped Houston 5-3.

White Sox 6, Indians 4

Jim Kaat won his 17th game with the relief help of Dave Hamilton in Chicago's win over Cleveland. Pat Kelly tied the score with his eighth homer in the seventh inning and the White Sox took the lead when Jorge Orta and Deron Johnson followed with doubles. Roric Harrison was the loser.

Angels 5, Red Sox 3

Jerry Remy doubled in two runs and Lee Stanton singled in two more to lead California to its victory which cut Boston's lead over Baltimore in the seventh inning to 5 1/2 games. Fifteen-game winner Bill Lee suffered his seventh loss for the Red Sox while Bill Singer went 6 1-3 innings for the win.

Reds 6, Pirates 1

George Foster hit his 20th and 21st homers and drove in five runs for Cincinnati. Gary Nolan went eight innings, allowing four hits, to win his 11th game against six losses while Pittsburgh's Jerry Reuss suffered his ninth setback against 12 victories.

Braves 6, Cardinals 4

Dave May hit a three-run homer in the first inning, propelling Atlanta past St. Louis. Lynn McGlothen, the victim of the homer, was tagged with his ninth loss against 12 wins while Phil Niekro won his 12th game compared with 10 defeats.

Giants 9, Expos 2

Jim Barr won his 11th game behind a 12-hit attack which included Dave Rader's three-run homer in the second inning. Willie Montanez added three hits to the San Francisco attack which dealt Dennis Blair his 14th defeat against seven wins. Larry Bittner had three hits for Montreal.

Cubs 5, Astros 3

Rob Sperring and Steve Swisher bunted in runs in the fourth inning, helping Chicago down Houston. Steve Stone shut out the Astros from the third until the ninth when they scored a run on Enos Cabell's double and a single by Wilbur Howard.

Playing With Arnie Beats Leading GHO

WETHERSFIELD, Conn.

(UPI) — Denny Meyer isn't too excited but he may decide to wear the rug out in his motel room to keep sharp his putting that gave him an eight birdie, in first round lead of seven under par 64 in the Greater Hartford Open.

Meyer, 31, who took the lead Thursday one stroke ahead of Austin Straub and Don Bies, said his performance was not his biggest thrill and didn't compare to playing with Arnold Palmer in last week's PGA.

Meyer, The Palm Springs, Calif., club pro not officially listed on the tour, said of Palmer: "Playing with Arnie was the highlight of my career. Not even leading here can compare with it. Nothing can make me nervous now."

Meyer said he spent six hours putting in his motel Wednesday night and he used just 26 of them to put together his round. He scored birdies on the second, fifth and sixth holes for a 32 at the halfway mark.

On the back nine, Meyer birdied the 10th, 12th, 14th, 16th and 17th holes but bogeyed the 15th. He fashioned the last birdie with a well placed 45-foot shot.

Meyer said he went "back and forth, back and forth," on his motel rug and "during every commercial and wild soap opera I was up putting."

Straub, 32, who joined the tour in March and won the Connecticut Open last year, came home at 33-32 for 65 totals. "This course is suited to my game. I'm not a long ball hitter," he said.

The veteran Bies, 43, finished well in the afternoon heat.

"When you've got things going, the heat is one of the last things on your mind," he said.

A total of 55 of the 142 players broke the 71 par at the Wethersfield Country Club course.

Mike Hill, Hubie Green, Dave Glenz, Andy North and J.C. Snead all scored 66, one stroke ahead of U.S. Open champion Lou Graham. Also at four under par were Jerry Heard, Ray Floyd, Bob Zenden, John Wells, Homero Blancos and former GHO winner Bob Goalby.

Ten players registered 68s in the $40,000 first prize tournament. 5 Defending champion Dave Stockton came in at 69, along with 14 others, including Johnny Miller, who failed to make the PGA cut last week.

"I'm only five strokes back," said Stockton. "That's about as well as I've done in recent weeks. I'm in good position."

Miller said he felt ready to play "some good golf now. I guess I had to miss a cut or two to shape me up."

A two-stroke slow play penalty, which is rarely called in tournament play, was assessed against Tom Purtzer after it took the first threesome more than four hours to finish.

Fund-Raising in New Paltz

NEW PALTZ A citizens' group from the New Paltz Central School District, spearheaded by Peter J. Savago and Dr. David Mesches, will hold a meeting at the New Paltz VFW Wednesday at 7 p.m. in an attempt to raise funds for the continuance of interscholastic athletics.

New Paltz Athletic Director John Ford said this morning that Wednesday's meeting had been motivated by the defeat earlier this week of eight out of nine budget items, including athletics, by voters in the New Paltz district.

Football is the sport that has motivated the citizens' action and primary fund-raising will concentrate on that sport since practice for the 1975 season is to begin Wednesday morning. But Ford emphasized that all other sports, boys and girls, will try to be saved.

It is anticipated that $1500 will have to be raised for football. Combined with gate receipts and profits from concession stands, the $1500 would enable football to make it through. Coaches, however, would not be paid.

"We want to make it clear, and by we I mean the football, soccer, and cross country coaches, that we will work this way this year, but never again," Ford, who is the football coach, stated.

The cost of fund-raising, gate receipts, and concessions would cover such items as balls, officials, first aid, transportation, and some equipment. Most equipment has been held over from past years.

Also included would be insurance for the athletes, although Ford pointed out that the insurance would be reduced to a minimal level.

"We've always had the best in the past," said Ford. Although money will not have been raised by Wednesday morning, Ford has a guarantee that his football players will be covered immediately at the start of the first practice.

New Paltz is one of two school districts currently without an interscholastic sports budget for 1975-76. Rondout Valley became the second on Wednesday. As of this morning no word on possible fund-raising efforts had come from that community.

The Onteroa and Ellenville districts have budget votes scheduled for next week.

Mastro Retains AAA Crown

KINGSTON

Mastro Construction is a team that has stayed on top of the City Slo-Pitch Softball League's AAA Division with long ball power for the last few years, but it was a key defensive play that enabled the big sluggers to retain their title at St. Mary's field Thursday night.

With Uhl's construction runners on first and third in the last of the seventh, the potential tying and winning runs, Mastro shortstop Tom Fiore turned a hot smash into a 6-4-3 double play that made Mastro a 6-5 winner.

Mastro grabbed the lead in the first, clipping loser Bud Bunt for three quick runs. Uhl's, however, came right back with two of its own, and that one-run difference stood up the rest of the way.

The champs pushed another across in the fourth only to have Uhl's match it. The teams traded solo runs again in the fifth.

It was 5-4 Mastro going into the seventh as Fiore slapped a single to reach safely. He went to second on a fielders choice and tallied the final Mastro score when George

Transit Survey Offered

KINGSTON
The city has been notified by the State Department of Transportation (DOT) that it is eligible for an urban mass transit study grant of up to $20,000.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig received a letter from DOT last week telling him that if the city were interested, the state, thanks to a grant from the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration, would be willing to undertake a study in Kingston. Costs would be divided among the federal government (80 percent), the state (15 percent) and the city (five percent), estimated at about $1,000.

The studies will examine the need for public transit services in small areas and result in a detailed plan for improving or expanding present services or initiating new services in areas where none presently exist," the state wrote.

To what extent the city will be able to utilize such a program is questionable, however. The city carried out a similar study when it applied for three new buses last year. Final approval on the buses from state and federal authorities is expected by the end of the month with bid openings set for late September.

Koenig referred the state's inquiry on a survey of mass transit needs to the city planner.

Quick Police Action

POUGHKEEPSIE

"There's no doubt the action by the police saved lives," said Poughkeepsie Fire Chief John Van Norstrand today after a blaze broke out in a Poughkeepsie rooming house. Two policemen discovered the fire at 220 Mill Street shortly before 3 a.m. and, with two other officers who joined them, began rousing and removing the 14 residents from the smoke-filled, three-story building.

Three patrolmen, identified as Thomas Angell, Theodore Alston and Chris Rygiel were treated and released at St. Francis Hospital for smoke inhalation following their rescue efforts. One resident of the building, identified as Rodney Nemath, suffered a laceration of the right arm in a leap from a second-story window, authorities said.

Firemen joined in removing residents from the building when they arrived.

The fire started in a vacant apartment and is under investigation. Van Norstrand said it was suspicious. Fire damage was confined mainly to one apartment on the first floor and to the roof and one wall of the building. Smoke and water damage was reported throughout.

★★★

Meanwhile, in area police matters:

Brian Hinton, 22, of Poughkeepsie, was arrested early today by state police on a charge of rape on the complaint of a 20-year-old woman, who police said has been an acquaintance of Hinton's for some two years. The alleged incident occurred in a car in the Town of Lloyd off Route 44-55 sometime between 2 and 3 a.m., authorities said.

★★★

In New Paltz, Michael Burns, 20, of Poughkeepsie was charged with speed not reasonable or prudent and with following too closely after the car he was operating collided with the rear of a fruit stand being towed by a tractor on Route 299 Thursday evening. Burns was treated and released for injuries at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie. The tractor operator, Robert Ferrante, 15, of New Paltz, was not reported injured.

★★★

In the Town of Wawarsing, a 19-year-old Kerhonkson youth, Randolph Greher, was charged with disorderly conduct after he allegedly began throwing items in the Ellenville Community Hospital while being treated for minor injuries sustained in a Pine Bush auto accident Thursday. Arraigned before Wawarsing Town Justice Joseph Polonsky, Greher was sent to jail in lieu of $500 bail.

Rule of 11 Favors East More

If East has also been applying the rule of 11 he knows that South has exactly two spades and that both are higher than the three spot. If East is really on his toes he will come to the conclusion that one of those two spades is the 10 spot. Otherwise, South would have been inclined to play dummy's nine rather than the jack.

After this decision, East sees that if South's other spade is the king there is a way to hold South to just one spade trick. Then East plays his eight of spades, not the queen.

After this play the failure of both minor suit finesses is going to leave South just one trick short of the nine he needs to score game and rubber.

Sheikh Rahman Dies in Bangladesh Coup

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The armed forces seized power in Bangladesh today in a pre-dawn coup that took the life of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman and put his pro-American commerce minister in power, reports from Dacca said.

Bangladesh Radio, in a broadcast monitored in New Delhi, said Khondakar Mushtaque Ahmed led the coup against the left-wing sheikh, ruler of the country since its bloody war of independence in 1971.

"Under the leadership of Khondakar Mushtaque Ahmed, the armed forces have taken over in Bangladesh," the radio said. "Sheikh Mujibur Rahman has been killed and his autocratic government has been toppled."

The broadcast, monitored by the Press Trust of India news agency, said the coup against the 55-year-old sheikh "has been taken in the greater interests of the country."

"Mr. Ahmed has become the president of the country," the radio said. "All patriotic and peace-loving citizens of the country are requested to cooperate with the new government."

In Washington, the State Department also reported the coup in the desperately poor country of 75 million, one of the most overcrowded and underfed nations in the world. A State Department spokesman said there were no reports of casualties among the 765 Americans, including 111 U.S. government personnel and dependents, living in Bangladesh.

Reports reaching New Delhi said there was sporadic fighting around the Bangladesh capital of Dacca at the start of the 5:30 a.m. coup but "otherwise the situation seems calm."

The reports said the armed forces imposed a 24-hour curfew and martial law throughout Bangladesh for an indefinite period.

Bangladesh, the former east wing of Pakistan, came into being four years ago after a guerrilla uprising touched off the 1971 war between India and Pakistan.

Ahmed, an attorney described by Bangladesh diplomats as pro-American, was one of the leaders of the guerrilla war that culminated in the Dec. 16, 1971, surrender of Pakistan to India.

The Pakistani defeat touched off a brief period of anarchy in which the Bangladesh victors took bloody revenge on their opponents in the new country.

Diplomatic sources said the 56-year-old, quiet-spoken Ahmed, considered a conservative in the ousted left-wing government, had long been opposed to what he regarded as the sheikh's autocratic rule.

The sources said Ahmed was replaced as foreign minister in 1971 because the Soviet-backed sheikh considered him too pro-American and pro-Western.

The Bangladesh broadcast called on the people of Bangladesh to stay at home until further notice and instructed police to report to the nearest army command posts for orders.

Kissinger: 'Hands Off in Portugal'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says Soviet involvement in the political turmoil in Portugal would violate the principles of European security agreed to in Helsinki two weeks ago.

He also says the United States sides with the moderate elements in the political and military struggle in Portugal.

Kissinger, addressing a commodity producers meeting Thursday before flying to Vail, Colo., and a meeting with President Ford later today, pointed a finger at the Soviets and their alleged intervention in Portugal on behalf of the troubled Communist Party.

"In Portugal, a focus of current concern, the Soviet Union should not assume that it has the option, either directly or indirectly, to influence events contrary to the right of the Portuguese people to determine their own future," he said.

"The involvement of external powers for this purpose in a country which is an old friend and ally of ours is inconsistent with any principle of European security," Kissinger said.

Washington sources have said the Russians have been pouring millions of dollars a month into Portugal in an effort to help the Communists gain control of the government.

While the turmoil has its origin "in the dynamics of Portuguese history," 80 percent of the Portuguese people have declared a desire for democratic system, he said.

Kissinger said the United States sympathizes with moderate elements seeking to build Portugal by democratic means, but: "We will oppose and speak out against the efforts of a minority that appears to be subverting the resolution for its own purposes." Ford and Soviet Communist party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev were among European and Canadian leaders who met at the recent Helsinki Security Conference and signed a "Final Act" whose principles include a pledge of noninterference in the domestic politics of another nation.

Meanwhile, in Lisbon, Portugal's ruling three-man junta has reportedly encountered open opposition from key military commanders, touching off reports of a planned coup attempt.

The weekly newspaper Expresso said speculation about a coup was based on a series of coded messages broadcast over amateur radio frequencies.

"Unconfirmed rumors are circulating of a possible coup attempt that could come from the left or the right to oblige a clarification of the situation."

the newspaper said.

Expresso said the radio broadcasts indicated any action would come this weekend.

Military sources said the opposition to the junta emerged at a government meeting Wednesday.

They said 100 key military commanders passed a motion demanding the junta withdraw its order ousting nine moderate officers from the influential Revolutionary Council.

They said Military Security Chief Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho formally accepted the proposal and was expected to transmit it to President Francisco de Costa Gomes.

Power Reassumed in Angola

LUANDA, Angola (UPI) — Portugal has reassumed power in its embattled colony of Angola in an effort to keep one of three warring black liberation movements from unilaterally declaring independence.

Portugal's acting high commissioner, Gen. Ferreira do Macedo, announced the action in a nationwide broadcast Thursday night following the collapse of the tripartite government set up to lead the colony to independence in November.

"In the absence of any functioning government and under the provisions of the Alvor agreement, I have assumed responsibility for the administration of Angola," he said.

The Alvor agreement, signed by the three parties in Portugal last January, said if the joint transitional government did not function as a whole, Portugal would take over the government.

The three liberation movements are battling for control of the oil-rich West African territory before it becomes independent.

The Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola is in control of the seaside capital of Luanda after driving out rival forces in three weeks of street fighting that claimed over 500 lives.

The two other guerrilla groups, the Peking-backed National Front for the Liberation of Angola and the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, have formed a temporary alliance and cut off Luanda from the interior.

The capital's 650,000 residents were reported running low on essential supplies, including food and fuel.

Ford Plans Veto Of Oil Extension

VAIL, COLO. (UPI) — President Ford said today he will veto a six-month extension of controls on domestic oil prices and will remove the $2 a barrel tariff on imported oil if the veto is upheld.

Ford said the net effect of the immediate decontrol and removal of import fees will mean an increase of a few cents a gallon in the price of petroleum products.

His experts have said fuel products will increase no more than 6 cents a gallon as a result of decontrol. But they estimated decontrol, along with removal of the import fees, would raise the price of gasoline only 2 or 3 cents a gallon.

"The on-again, off-again congressional approach to energy is hazardous, expensive and frightening," Ford said in remarks prepared for delivery later today at the Vail Symposium on Energy.

The domestic oil price ceilings of $5.25 a barrel expire
